voted into SGA at the next meeting.

"We're bringing in two more to become probationary next week," Taflinger said. "It's definitely keeping the nomination committee busy," Taflinger said.

In other business at the meeting, a bill to pay a florist was approved. The flowers were sent to Kathleen Lee, SGA senator and economics and accounting senior after major surgery this summer.

The bill from the florist was $62.48 with a $4 late fee.

The bill to pay the florist was moved into emergency status and voted in unanimously.

"I want to make it clear that the money to pay for this does not come out of the student activity fee," David Prince, secondary education senior and senate chair said.

Prince said the money would come out of the credit card royalties account instead.

Also, the SGA discussed plans for a fall event and a raffle to raise money for the Children's Center.

As a prize, the winner will receive one week of free childcare at the Children's Center.

The event is going to be a Halloween costume party. The event is still in early planning stages. Taflinger said more details will come.

Corbean

his master's in secondary education.

Corbean said he has tried to mold bits and pieces of the best parts of all the coaches he has played and worked for into his own unique style.

"My approach is to learn from all, and imitate none," Corbean said.

He also said players who come in to college today are either driven by academic or athletic success, and it was his job to get the very best out of each and every one of them to help make them successful in life.

Corbean will take his wife, Kathy, and son with him to Winston-Salem, N.C. Kathy Corbean, IUS Associate Director of Campus Life, has also resigned.

Mrozowski said the search committee to find Walt Corbean's replacement closes September 17, 2007, and they hope to have a new coach in place very soon.

Corbean said this was not the first time this very job was available to him. The offer for the same position was available to him after his first season for the Grenadiers.

Corbean said the timing of the offer was not right. He had set up certain goals within the KIAC and the NAIA for his team, and it would not be fair to him or the university to leave after just one year.

When the offer was extended again, this time by Gaudio, Corbean said it was an opportunity he could not pass up for either himself or his family.

"This is a high profile job at a prestigious university in the [Atlantic Coast Conference], and I get a chance to help fulfill Coach Prosser's dream for Wake Forest University," Corbean said.

Mrozowski said that Corbean has built a tremendous basketball program.

"Walt has set a high standard for whoever comes into to replace him. He is a good man, and we wish him all the success in the world," Mrozowski said.

Experience

Program starts second year successfully

The importance of scholarships was talked about.

William Perry's "Theory of Intellectual and Ethical Development" was presented in three stages as people develop their reasoning maturity.

The first stage, dualism, is when things are perceived as good or bad.

Multiplicity, the second stage, demonstrates that knowledge is just an option. Sometimes students rebel against a teacher's judgement.

According to the last stage, relativism, it's OK to have different opinions but professors are usually going to have more experience in their field.

In the third example, Staten mentioned someone she knew, whose religious beliefs were challenged in a philosophy class she took.

Staten said it upset her so much she almost dropped the class. She decided to keep the class and although her beliefs remained the same, she now has respect for other views.

Staten also used the book "Learning from Green Eggs and Ham" by Dr. Seuss as an example.

According to the book, there are some things in life that might be good for you, but we resist change. The book also states that it often makes us a more whole person if we do experience some change.

Staten urged students to connect with a faculty member for help in their college experience.

"Find out how you fit into the world around you," Staten said.

She said there are more than 70 student organizations at IU Southeast, which offer a great selection of places to start.

Volleyball

Kimberly Davidson, sophomore middle hitter, jumps to hit the ball back to the Georgetown Tigers as Shelby Newman, freshman outside hitter, looks on.

The women's volleyball team lost against Georgetown.

The women's volleyball team will have their next home game on Sept. 18, 6 p.m. in the Activities Building.
