

Figure 3. Energy use for refrigerators and standby electronics. Regulation and financial incentives have decreased the energy consumption of household refrigerators. But the decrease has been offset by the growing energy consumption by electronics in standby mode. (Data courtesy of Arthur Rosenfeld, California Energy Commission.)